'To put it as simply as possible. your children will have to leave Victoria to find gainful employment when they enter the labor force.

'Even in a region which desires a low growth rate it seems reasonable that we could adopt as an economic objective that of creating sufficient jobs in Victoria so that the children of the residents have a reasonable choice whether or not they make the long, cold trek to Calgary or Edmonton."

Times News Services. LONDON - Anthony Blunt, the queen's art adviser unmasked as a former Russian spy, said today he realized 30 years ago he made 'an appalling mistake" and refused a Soviet order to defect to Moscow 'because I'd rather spend one month in danger in England than 10 years in Russia.'

In his first statement on the scan-dal since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher revealed his past last Thursday, Blunt said his role as a Soviet spy was the result of choosing 'political conscience' over loyalty to his country.

In a press statement, Blunt said diplomat Guy Burgess persuaded him "that I could best serve the cause of anti-fascism by joining him in his work for the Russians."

The disgraced art historian, stripped of his knighthood as a result of the spy scandal, did not admit that he was a traitor, nor did he

"This was a case of political con-science against loyalty to country," he said. "I chose conscience. Blunt said: "When later I realized

the true facts about Russia, I was prevented from taking any action by personal loyalty: I could not denounce my friends."

Mrs. Thatcher had said he served as a talent spotter for the Soviet Union at Cambridge University in the 1930s, passed information to the Russians when he was a military intelligence officer during the war and helped Burgess and fellow spy diplomat Donald Maclean to defect to the Soviet Union in 1951.

In the interview with Independent Television News, Blunt, wearing a gray sports coat, blue sweater and silver-rimmed glasses, said "I now realize I was totally wrong.' Asked how it felt to be called a

VICTORIA TIRE

GOOD FYEAR Safe, sure traction when you need it!

That's what you get with Goodyear quality-built snow tires. There's a Goodyear snow tire for every car, every driving need. It's a great feeling to ride on the gripping power of Goodyear snow tires when winter blows up a storm!

THE ICE RADIAL

The Ice Radial is the tire that Goodyear built to take on the worst ravages of winter and get you through safely. The secret is in the special rubber compound that stays "bendable" – even at below freezing temperatures – to onform to icy road surfaces.

This is our finest traction tire, built tough with Flexten cord belts—pound for pound stronger than steel. It also has a unique tread design with hundreds of biting edges for traction on ice as well as in snow.

Economy radial performance.

Here's the newest member of Goodyear's line-up of quality winter tires. It's the VIVA XG, designed with fiberglass belts to match the radials that are factory installed on the majority of new cars this year. The VIVA XG's tread is designed to give maximum bite when the tire is put to work through snow or on ice. You'll enjoy a smooth, quiet ride, too; as the flexible polyester cord soaks up-bumps. The fiberglass P185/80R13 belts put more tire on the road for even wear, longer tire life.

SUBURBANITE POLYGLAS The ideal winter match for bias-belted tires!

Here's the winter tire for cars equipped with bias-belted tires. Two belts of fiberglass cord over a smooth-riding polyester cord body give you superior strength, stability and handling compared to non-belted tires. And these Polyglas Suburbanites give you a big extra measure of traction. The wide, rugged tread digs deep, bites into snow so you can eope with severe winter driving conditions.

SUBURBANITE XG 78 Goodyear's best non-belted snow tire!

If you're driving on non-belted summer tires, here's the answer to tough winter

The deep moulded tread design is engineered to take on tough driving conditions this winter, Broad, interlocking centre cleats provide the grip to get you through snow covered roads and greasy, slushy highways. Four plies of polyester cord in the tire body give you a strong tire and a smooth, no-thump ride – even on the coldest mornings.

Broadcasters' remarks found in contempt

VANCOUVER (CP) - Two broadcas ters were formally found guilty Monday of committing criminal contempt in their comments about one of the accused in a B.C. Supreme Court drug trial.

Chief Justice Allan McEachern of the B.C. Supreme Court reserved decision to Thursday on the sentencing of open-line host Gary Bannerman of radio station CKNW and news reporter Russ Froese of B.C. Television Ltd.

The offending remarks, which the court decided were calculated to prejudice a criminal proceeding, were made in October, 1978, and concerned the criminal background of William (Fats) Robertson, who was on trial for conspiring to traffic in in a news report to Robertson's past brushes with the law and Bannerman ac-cused him during a broadcast of being a Lawyer Ernie Alexander, for Froese and the television station, said his clients didn't intend to interfere with justice and reminded the court that both had apo-

Counsel Doug Hogarth, for Bannerman and the radio station, also applogized and assured the court that his clients will establish a system to ensure that the broadcaster doesn't commit a similar offence in the future.

Robertson was later found guilty and sentenced to a lengthy jail term.

urged to offset lumber cuts VANCOUVER (CP) - An economic study pre pared for Fibecro Export Inc. says next year could be disastrous for B.C. lumber producers and it urges the provincial government to review wood chip pricing policies to help the sawmills.

Fibecro is a co-operative marketing organization serving 42 independent sawmills in B.C.

Economic conditions in the United States could cause lumber production to fall off as much as 15 per cent in the B.C. Interior next year, said the report.

It blamed poor U.S. lumber markets on higher interest rates and said housing starts could be as low as 1.2 million at the end of next year, down 30 per cent from this year and 40 per cent from 1978. weather low lumber prices, the report said. The chips are the raw material for pulp mills which currently are enjoying healthy markets.

The price of wood chips sold within B.C. is nine-per-cent of the price of a ton of bleached pulp, with price adjustments made every six months. The current price is $31 a bone dry unit (BDU) with the next adjustment due in January.

A BDU is 2,400 pounds and it takes about 2.2-BDU to make a ton of bleached pulp.

In other provinces, sawmills are averaging $50 a BDU for domestic prices.

The export price follows fluctuations of the open market, but B.C. chips are currently selling at between $80 and $90 to Japanese pulp makers.

Waiting for a policy

Predictions are that the average Canadian householder's bill for gasoline and home heating oil may soon rise at least $300 a year because of federal policies.

That will be the cost when the Clark government's proposals on crude oil price increases and a gasoline excise tax are realized. With such price increases in the offing, it makes little sense for people on Vancouver Island to be left without the alternatives of switching to either hydro-electricity or natural gas. But do we need both?

Last week Westcoast Transmission put a proposal before the provincial cabinet for a $260 million pipeline between Williams Lake and Vancouver Island. According to the company, gas could be flowing to Powell River, the Sunshine Coast and most major centers on Vancouver Island by the mid-'80s if all necessary approvals are quickly given.

At first blush, Energy Minister Jim Hewitt thought the cost high and asked-B.C. Hydro to submit a capital cost of nearly $1 billion.

be cheaper, a pipeline to cross the Strait of Georgia farther south.

But at the same time, B.C. Hydro is pushing ahead on the Cheekye-Dunsmuir power transmission line. Hydro is asking Island residents to ease their hydroelectrical use in-peak periods. It says that unless the 500,000 kilovolt line is built between Squamish and Vancouver Island, brown-outs on the Island will become a fact of life by the mid-'80s

B.C. is well endowed with natural gas. With the massive push to convert home heating systems in Ontario and Quebec from oil to gas, it would be prudent for Island homeowners to do the same, had they the opportunity.

But unlike eastern Canada, B.C. is also fortunate with its hydroelectic potential. And with hydro, there is the opportunity to fuel industry and heat homes.

Providing both natural gas and new hydro transmission lines to Vancouver Island would involve Hewitt says that after many months of research and planning, an energy policy for the province is now in its seventh draft, but is still not ready for public scrutiny. Presumably this energy policy will spell out the government's forceasts for future energy consumption and the energy forms and developments that are needed to meet those forecasts.

Vancouver Island, now lacking in hydro and gas, could soon have access to both. Does the planning by each of Westcoast Transmission and B.C. Hydro complement the efforts of the other? Could both the pipeline and transmission lines have been put in the same corridor through the coastal mountain range. What other options exist for Vancouver Island?

Clark learns life isn't fair

OTTAWA—"Life", as the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy used to remark, "isn't fair." Goodness isn't always rewarded, the meek seldom inherit the earth, and those who turn the other cheek sometimes get it slapped — as Joe Clark discovered last week when he presented his "fresh face on federalism" to Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

To Clark, it has been an article of faith that the reason federal-provincial relations are in such a mess is because Pierre Trudeau enraged the provinces by acting unilaterally, by failing to consult, and by treating the premiers as if they were jumped-up

Clark came to office determined to do things differently. He would build by good will, by consultation, and by, most of all, trust, a contented "community of communities."

Understands west

Intuition rather than ideology shapes Clark's policy. He is himself naturally courteous; he takes for granted others will be as courteous in return. He's a westerner, and so un-derstands instinctively, and in a way no non-westerner can, that region's resentment at its exclusion from national decision-making.

- Last week Clark learned that life isn't fair. To the fact that a fellow-Alevident irony, but also a certain sad-

By the close of the energy conference in Ottawa last Monday, Clark had at his finger tips a "new energy policy" that was as ambitious as it was comprehensive". Only Ontario objected to an increase of oil prices by $4 a barrel a year. Only Quebec objected to the other parts of Clark's program, such as a self-sufficiency tax to scoop up excess oil industry revenues and to transfer these ($1½ billion worth over four years) to a new national energy bank that, by investing in new projects, would compensate consumers for the higher prices by ensuring they wouldn't freeze in the dark.

In place of the old federalism of confrontation, Clark had put a new face. Then he went west, to Calgary and to Saskatoon and got slapped.

A federal tax on excess oil industry revenues was "unacceptable", Lougheed said in the Alberta legislature the day after the conference. All Ottawa could do, Lougheed added, would be to tax excess profits. He hadn't bothered to say this during the Ottawa meeting, Lougheed later explained to reporters 'because we weren't there to negoti

The difference between a tax on revenues and a tax on profits is the difference between a tax on the money oil companies actually make and the isn't fair. To the fact that a fellow-Almoney they say, they make — after bertan taught him this there is an accountants, and tax lawyers have told them what to say. An excess profits tax, indeed, is technically unfeasible. Even if feasible, it would harvest too little money to fund a national energy bank. All that would be left to Clark's energy policy would be higher prices.

During their mid-week encounter in Saskatoon — a grand-duke come to meet the dauphin — Lougheed told Clark he would block any federal ex-cess revenues tax by increasing his own provincial royalties, which would take the first slice out of the pie, until no excess revenues remained for Ottawa to tax. As well, as his price for any agreement at all, Lougheed demanded a $5 a barrel increase each year rather than the $4 a barrel hike discussed by the premiers during the Ottawa conference.

Predictable

To cast Lougheed as the villain in this drama is tempting. But facile. His own prickly vanity aside, Lougheed is behaving no differently than would any premier who discovered oil, be neath his feet or off his coast.

To fault Lougheed thus is to miss the point. He's doing what he was elected to do — defending the interests f his community. The point instead is that Clark is dictating the interests of the community that elected him — the larger community of Canada.

Act of cowardice

The contribution of the young, misguided lady purporting to, or representing the Federation of B.C. Women, towards turning part of the Remembrance Day service at the Legisla-ture, into an embarrassing fiasco was more than a little revolting. To have used this occasion for her or her orga nization's purposes where she was almost assured of the graciousness of those around her, in spite of how she tried it, was an act of cowardice. To her, I can only say that only after she begins to grasp the nature of problems, will she be able to begin to solve them:

It is my sincere hope that neither she nor her organization will mar the short services offered once a year for the remembrance of those who suffered and died on our and her behalf. I am shocked, and tired of her kind of pretending to represent all women. — Ann V. Kuczerpa, 205-2100 Cadboro Bay Road.

Need sacrifice

This is written on Remembrance Day, a day which honors and thanks those who fought to defend democracy and especially those who did not return.

I believe that it is also a day to remember all those "civilians" too young or too old to take up arms, and the women who, in many ways, joined in the war's efforts.

During the war years, the peo-ple in all free countries accepted without complaint "rationing" of all basic commodities and in some areas this rationing was rather severe.

What a contrast with today's attitudes! Our society seems to have lost the meaning of "sacrifice." A small delay at a gas station, a cancellation of ferry sailing, a restriction in airlines flights to save fuel are enough to provoke the angry reaction of the public. We seem unable to accept the realities of the difficult times which we live, to be willing to make some personal sacrifices which are required of us. We blast governnents and go on asking for more when there is less.

Federal political parties are play ing dangerous games and even hinting an early election in a very near future. Perhaps if all political leaders (I wonder how they can call themelves "leaders") would try to remember the co-operation which was achieved during the war effort to en sure our final victory, we could come to some sensible solutions of the problems that plague us: energy, interna-tional debt, efficient management of natural and human resources long as the Commons will go on shout-ing accusations across the floor nothing positive will be done, and the sore spectacle of conflicts and frustrated ambitions will unfold, daily, under the eyes of the seeming powerless public and — alas! — foreign observers.

The decline of confidence in a system and institutions for the preservation of which many gave their lives is probably more depressing than our financial deficts and the lowering value of our currency. - E. I. Lattes.

Scared tree

When I went to work this morning I had a stately London plane tree gracing the boulevard in front of my house Mature, well formed and about sixty feet high it was a decided asset to the street. Pioneer Park and my home, a municipal heritage structure which I am restoring. The tree performed double duty as it both hid the View Tower from my sight and added to the atmosphere of the neighborhood.

-Coming home this evening I was faced with the disheartening caricature of a tree hacked into a disfiguring to accommodate overhead wires. ot.carefully primed but chopped back with a vengence to the furthest ex-treme possible for the convenience of an organization who will not have to pay a crew to come back and prune for a good many years.

No letter ever reached my door, nor phone call ever informed me of an event, the result of which will annoy me every time I look upon the tree. I don't even know who did it. It could have been the city crew responsible for the chainsaw massacre of the plane trees on Chester and Speed Streets. It could have been B.C. Hydro who runned my view and depreciated the attractiveness and value of my property. It might have been B.C. Tel. Whoever they were they struck while I was at work and without warning.

Had they had the common courtesy to inform me, I would willingly have paid out of my own pocket for a more numane pruning and ensuring a return visit every year so as not to sacrifice the beauty of the tree to the expedience of the organization. The smaller trees on Meares are plagued by sense-less vandalism. It turns out that large trees are not immune either, only it's perpetrated by responsible corpora-

Vote on it

When I attend a symphony concert I prefer that the opening work be on the program, rather than O Canada or The Queen. However, if I am required to lumber to my feet, I believe that, as a Canadian (though of British descent) O Canada should be played. That both works should be played is completely unnecessary and an impo-sition. Furthermore, I believe that there is only a vocal minority of English types who are making an issue of this matter. However, let's be demo-cratic: ballots should be available to the patrons at the next concert or two, so that the majority shall decide. — W B. Holliday, 45-933 Admirals Road.

Cool and décisive

Accepting her argument that she was among those in on the Lettergate to whom "Theirs is not to reason why" applied, Ellen Mackay's employers have nervously cancelled their conclusion that she should be disciplined. She remains as cool and decisive a figure as can be found in the atmosphere of incipient panic.

It would be enlightening to know what her actual contribution was when use of dubious tactics was being pondered. For all the disclaimers, those drilled in the use of research and public relation weapons are paid to reason why. They exist to help su-preme commanders come to intellygent conclusions, then to convince the public that the decisions arrived at are

Could it be that Miss Mackay enjoys the restrained esteem of her superiors because she initially advised against dirty tricks? Such things have happened at the heart of policy-mak ing within my own experience. More than once I have heard a rear-ranker tell his chief, "This is neither wise nor ethical. If you decide to go through with it and I'm involved, I'll try to earn my pay. Please record, though, that this is against my bost judgment."

I don't know of any such dissenter who was fired or dropped to the bottom of the promotion ladder, though there probably are some. Safe berths in PR exist for the cautious but inmative inescapably invites hazard. However, I can recall junior-grade nobodies who, advancing the right as they had been given to see it, changed the minds of senior somebodies. I can recall several who moved closer to be-coming trusted somebodies when their convictions found place in matters of national consequence.

Regardless of what may or may not have happened in the council of war that catapulted Miss Mackay into her present prominence, the positive po tential of her profession could be profitably noted - even by those who at the moment would rather not hear any more about it. — Frederick B. Watt, 1101 Hilda Street.

Engineering marvel

I would like to offer a very sincere congratulation and appreciation to the engineering genius who devised and installed the wheelchair lifts into the ordinary transit buses on the Beacon Hill route. It is nothing short of miraculous in the way it works, and it surely will open up a whole new door of opportunity to the handicapped folk, who can now view this avenue of es cape from a restriction which con-trolled their activities. Even if they do not use it very extensively, it is an emancipated freedom to know that they could go "downtown" any day they want to . . . and for the ordinary price of the bus fare into the bargain! I have several friends restricted to wheelchair mobility and it has always been a costly struggle to make the effort to take them out "on the town.

Now it will be a great delight.

The apparatus of the loading steps does not interfere with the normal passengers and the extra space created by the hinged front two seats seems to allow for more standing room on a fully-loaded bus

I know that these new lift-equipped buses are on a testing evaluation time and route, but I do hope that the Urban Transit Authority will make every effort to extend the service to as We have not been informed how much it cost to convert a bus but it does not appear to be prohibitive. Victoria should take out a transit patent on the facility and let us hope other cities and towns would follow the procedure so that at least there would be one bus lift-equipped on all routes. - Mrs. Gladys Macpheron, 506-250 Douglas

Hope for mercy

Whatever the final outcome of the Iran crisis — the fate of the American hostages and the Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi - it is clear the situation brings into focus some political, psychological, and religious forces that pose a serious challenge to all of us: the challenge to examine the priorities, the values of Western de mocracy as it is confronted by a foreign consciousness unwilling to yield to anything but the will of Allah. We are used to brinkmanship (the Cuban crisis), Soviet brutality (the Hungarian Revolution), Viet Cong de-termination (the possibility of Communist hegemony in South East Asia) the cruel suppression of Soviet dissi dents, terrorist attacks in the Middle but never have we (and I speak of the West in general, but more specifically the United States) faced an adversary whose intransigence was not subject to political or diplomatic manoeuvring; that is, whose motives were not ultimately based on realpoli-

The Shah countenanced no criticism during this reign (ruthlessly suppressing all dissent); now we have another ruler, one however with a far more dangerous fiat: from God. We can only hope our gods or God will prevail upon Allah to show some mercy. - Robin Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Cruel deception

Your recent editorial defence of family allowance cut-backs, "Stick to your guns," over-simplified the issue. The suggestion is made that the mon ies "saved" could be used to fund presumably more important programs such as the mortgage payment tax credit plan. The view as taken that ' people will be hurt "a little" by the loss.
Unfortunately logic argues that to save $2 billion it is necessary to deflate the incomes of a great many families. Make no mistake, removing an existing benefit is equivalent to increased taxation for the group affected.

Let's examine the impact of this new "tax" a little more closely. The Times recently reported that a minimum income of $35,000 is required to qualify for full mortgaging of a fairly modest $65,000 family home. In fact $35,000 is also the proposed cut-off figure for family allowances. A family just reaching the income level neces sary to finance a house is judged affluent enough to forego family al-

Is their loss in income minimal? Not really. With two children, the loss is $480 per year (taxable). Ironically that sum is comparable to the proposed mortgage tax credit for 1979. I suggest that editorially you should have pointed out this cruel deception Do you really believe in universality for mortgage tax credits and effective means tests for family allowances? As it stand the full benefit of the tax credit will go to families with grown children or no children. Meanwhile, the inflationary impact of food and clothing price hikes has fallen more directly on families with young children.

Everyone agrees that Canadians must undergo some belt-tightening. However, let's make sure that nev taxation is applied evenly to middle and high income groups, and not just to those with young families. - Paul R. West, 1925 Appleton Place

Clark backs down

Apparently one of the most distasteful words in Joe Clark's lexicon is "confrontation". He is dead against it as he keeps saying so often, particularly in answer to questions in the know that by dictionary definition con-front simply means "to face up to". which is surely unobjectionable

The opposite to facing up to is backing away from and that is exactly what the PM seems to specialize in. He failed to face up to his Jerusalem boo boo but, instead, sent Bob Stanfield on a long, unnecessary trek throughout the Near East in order to get his leader off the hook at an estimated cost of $300,000, not counting salaries which go as high as $65,500.

The same is true of Petrocan, the energy problem generally and even Fabien Roy. It is still truer of Rene Levesque's challenge to Canada's very existence. Those familiar with American history will know what is meant when I suggest that he is rapidly becoming Canada's James Buchanan, the very last kind of leader this country needs in these dangerous days. I would, however, hesitate to go quite as far as Jean Chretien, who asked in Parliament "is it the inten-tion of the Prime Minister to become the Neville Chamberlain of Canada?" - F.L.P. Anderson, 409-2174 Cadboro Bay Road.

No sympathy

What would be the reaction of a group of radical women's libbers if one of their meetings was interrupted by an old soldier who grabbed the microphone and began to harangue them about the need to honor our war dead? Well, they would say he was out of place, his remarks inappropriate to the tone of the meeting and his action more likely to harm than help his cause. And they would be right.

And so I ask the question: ladies, with 364 other days of the year in which to advance your political cause, why did you have to choose Remembrance Day? Did you really think, the by defiling the service at the Cenotaph you would gain any public sympathy? If so, you'd better think again.—A. G. Richards, 4589 Blenkinsop Road.

Is fallout from nuclear reactors exposing people to dangerous levels of radiation - even without an accident? The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission claims that normal emissions from reactors are safe. But a report which the com-mission has been sitting on since early this year shows that these government safeclaims are based on fraudulent experiments.

Performed by Atomic Energy Commission scientists 20 years ago, the experiments demonstrate the gov-ernment's policy of making fallout look harmless. Thus today, the new report says, fallout from normally operating nuclear reactors is exposing people to radiation in excess of the authorized limits.

Although the NRC admits the charge about the fraudu-lent experiments, it denies that fallout from nuclear reactors is a health hazard. To find the truth in these conflicting claims, it helps to begin with what is known.

It is known that each of the 72 reactors in the U.S. releases some radioactive waste. This happens by de sign and because of human and mechanical flaws. Uranium fuel rods crack, pipe leak, filters fail and so do workers when they open the wrong valve.

To measure what this is doing to people, the NRC makes a dose calculation. This tracks the radioactivity from the reactor through the and tissue. The resulting "dose estimate" is the core of the claim that a normally operating nuclear reactor is

But the NRC now acknowledges that this safety calculation is based in part on the dubious experiments of the with the conviction that atmospheric nuclear testing was essential to national se

To quiet the Nervous Nellies who wanted a test ban, the old AEC took steps to show it was keeping on top of fallout. One such step was a program of experiments to find whether food crops would take up dangerous levels of fallout from the soil. More than just looking for results that would make fallout appear safe, most of the scientists rigged their experiments to produce the desired reassurance.

In measuring how much fallout plants would pick up from the soil:

-The AEC scientists made preliminary tests on a variety of soils. They chose for their experiments those soils which absorbed the least amount of fallout.

-It was known that plants have difficulty assimilating many fallout ingredients until they are acted upon by soil bacteria. To prevent this, the scientists cooked their soil in ovens and killed its bacteria.

—Then they added the ra-diotoxic substances to the soil shortly before the plants were harvested. This avoided the conditions of reality, where the plants would grow from seeds in the contamin-

Not surprisingly, these experiments showed hardly any fallout was getting into crop plants.

The report which reveals this information breaks new ground. It's the first time dug into the NRC's safety assurances to expose their

They found that a pres-surized water reactor planned for the town of Whyl on the Rhine could be expected to expose people to a yearly dose of 1,071 mil-lirems of wholebody radiation. The major part of this dose would come from radioactive substances taken into the body with food and drink. The reactor's exhaust air is the principal source of this

United States is 170 milassessments are unrealistilirems of wholebody radiation yearly from all nuclear facilities. On Dec. 1, the Environmental Protection Agency will reduce this limit to 25 millirems.
The study strongly suggests that realistic safety calculations would show each of the 72 U.S. reactors burdening people with more radiation than the new 25millirem limit. Since the NRC uses these dose es timates as its basic yardstick for licensing and regulation, it would have cause to act against all the country's nuclear plants in more than a cosmetic way. But this is not likely to happen, for more than economic reasons. Just as the

* New York

The stock market drifted lower in quiet trading today, continuing its recent sluggish trend Analysts said it was difficult to read much of signifi-cance into the market's narrow fluctuations so far this

But they said investors seemed to be taking a wary approach with the diplo-matic and financial war of wills continuing between the United States and Iran.

Ford Motor, in second place on the most-active list, fell 2½ to $30¼, trading at its lowest levels in almost five years. Ford's 88-per-cent owned Canadian subsidiary omitted its dividend.

International Business Machines, also active, rose % to $621/4. Two analysts quoted in the Wall Street Journal said the company's earnings report for the fourth quarter might have some pleasant surprises for investors.

In addition, IBM said it got its largest single order ever for retail point-of-sale terminals from F. W. Woolworth.

Keable vows to stir FLQ pot

MONTREAL (CP) — The Keable commission vowed today to expose the level of police infiltration of the Front de Liberation du Quebec and other separatist terrorist groups in the early 1970s.

Lawyer Jean Keable, who heads the Quebec government inquiry into police wrongdoing, made the pledge in his opening statement prior to the resumption of public hearings. He did not summarize the evidence gathered during seven months of closed-door work, but hinted strongly that the inquiry now has proof that the FLQ had been infiltrated, and that police anti-terrorist officers had become involved in the production of FLQ communiques delivered to the

There was a "grey area" between police and terrorists, not the hard-andfast distinction usually assumed to prevail, Keable said.

He also said he would not hestitate to look into specific aspects of police anti-terrorist operations during the 1970 October Crisis.

For example, he said the commission would examine why police "prematurely" called off an investigation into the the membership of the FLQ's Liberation Cell, which sparked the October Crisis by kidnapping British diplomat James Cross.

There were unconfirmed reports Monday that Sadat already had dispatched a plane to New York to pick up the shah. Sources in Cairo, however, said they doubted the authenticity of the reports.

Also in New York, the president of the UN General Assembly formally appealed to Iran to immediately free all U.S. hostages in Tehran because it was "crucial" to respect international law.

A UN spokesman said Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had been in continuous contact with Iran's special envoy Hamad Salamatian pressing for the release of the hostages.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Flora Mac-Donald said the government, is aware of "no immediate danger" to Canadians in Iran despite reports that Iranian students may take some Canadians hostage, Monday.

But she told reporters the government is keeping in touch with developments in Tehran "on an hourly basis" and is ready with contingency plans to evacuate in an emergency.

final last Saturday.
While the Montreal defence had much to crow about in that victory — it limited the Rough Riders to 59 yards in total offence — the Alouettes' attack, which had a net offence of 193 yards, left some cause for concern.

We all know that our defence is much better, particularly after its performance against Ottawa," said Alouettes' tight end Peter Dalla Riva. "But our offence has to do its share as well." That's particularly true if Montreal is to avenge last year's 20-13 Grey Cup loss to the Eskimos, and a humiliating 47-6 setback last Oct. 8 against the same club.

While most of the Alouettes expressed pleasure at meeting Ed-monton for the fifth time in the past six Grey Cup games, at least one player viewed the contest with 'The Eskimos have a tendency to hurt you the moment you think they're dead," said all-star corner linebacker Dickie Harris. "Take the game Sunday against Calgary, for example. The Eskimos weren't getting anywhere, and suddenly quarterback Warren Moon comes off the bench and leads the club to a touchdown in 27 seconds.

Harris expects to have a busy afternoon Sunday attempting to break up the Eskimos' vaunted passing game.

"Waddell Smith and Brian Kelly are simply fantastic," said Harris, of Edmonton's key pass-catching duo. "Kelly is not as fast as Smith, but he has great moves and is hard to defence. And the other pass receivers are not to be disre-

Eskimos, Alouettes dominate

By The Canadian Press

It was considered unusual last year when Edmonton Eskimos dominated the Western Football Conference all-star team with a dozen players, but this year they've gone even further.

There are a record-tying 14 of them on the team announced today

The Football Reporters of Canada selected eight Eski-mos on offence and six on defence. Eskimos this year esablished a team record for points with 495. It was held by Montreal Alouettes who scored 478 in 1956.

The western selectors named six Calgary Stam-peders, five British Colum-bia Lions and one member of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, while the once-powerful Sas-katchewan Roughriders failed to place a man on the

The 14-player domination the most since 1958, when the Blue Bombers managed the same feat.

Cougars lead all teams with 28 points. Portland Winter Hawks and Calgary Wranglers are two points back but Calgary has two games in hand on Victoria. There were no unanimous choices this year although wide receiver Waddell Smith of the Eskimos and tight end Stinginess, on the part of goaltenders Kevin Eastman and Grant Fuhr, has helped-Harry Holt of the Lions were only one vote away. Smith, who caught 74 passes this Cougars display some of their early-season greed. Fuhr, with a goals-against vear for a total of 1.214 yards and 13 touchdowns, is a average of 2.44, and East-man, right behind with a 2.78 nominee for the Schenley award as player-of-the-year mark, lead the league in Wickenheiser added seven goals and six assists to give Alouettes named to the Easthim 47 points and second place behind Doug Morrison ern team.

Green was the only unanimous choice among the 26 players selected in balloting by members of the Football Reporters of Canada.

Green, a 5-foot-10, 194pound rusher, is the eastern nominee for outstanding player-of-the-year. The Schenley award winners are to be announced Thursday in

The EFC defensive lineup sports an oddity in that Carl Crennel, traded to Edmonton Eskimos after 13 games with Montreal this season, was picked the all-star middle linebacker. Crennel will be in uniform for the Eskimos when they meet Montreal in the Grey Cup game in Montreal on Sunday. The East and West

Surprise plea ends kidnap trial

MONTREAL (CP) Jeanne Valence pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of extortion arising from the 82-day kidnapping of credit union official Charles Marion in 1977.

Within several minutes of the surprise plea, which cut short a trial that was expected to last several months, Mrs. Valence was freed on the main charges of conspiracy, kidnapping and forcible

The prosecution also re-ceived permission from Superior Court Justice Jean-Guy Boilard to drop a second extortion count. The judge scheduled a sentence hearing Wednesday.

The move came at the last minute, just as lawyers were about to start choosing the jury from a crowd of about 100 persons who packed the courtroom waiting for pro-ceedings to start. Mrs. Valence, 43, was taken to jail to await sentencing.

By pleading guilty to the single charge, Mrs. Valence, who appeared drawn and pale, followed the trail blazed by her husband, Claude, during a three-month trial last year.

Valence, 45, was acquitted of the main charges and convicted on the same extortion charge last January. The jury verdict in his case was with a rebate even if they do considered as an impressive victory, based on defence arguments that Marion was involved — to some extent — tually a large covered hole. This contention was firmly denied by Marion. Valence is in his own kidnapping.

The umpire, Mr. Justice J. Louis Dubinsky, a deputy judge of the Federal Court of Canada, dismissed the appeal by the group against a UIC order to return the money wrongly paid them. However, it was learned Monday, the judge strongly recommended that the commission consider section 175 of UIC regulations. The section permits the commission to cancel any payments owing it if undue hardship may be caused.

Mr. Justice Dubinsky heard the appeal here Feb. 1-2 and gave his decision March 16. The group ap-

Derailed tanker no risk

Gas from a derailed tank Alberni poses little public hazard in an unpopulated area, a chemist at the Insti-tute of Ocean Sciences said

The tankerful of sulphur dioxide apparently did not rupture and was expected to be back on the rails by Tuesday to resume its journey to the pulp mill at Port Alber-

Sulphur dioxide, used widely in industry as a bleaching agent, as a food additive and a sterilizer in wine-making, has an un-pleasant purigent aroma and can cause choking if inhaled in concentrated amounts.

When mixed with water it becomes sulphurous acid, one of the milder acids but in the atmosphere this could further react to become sulphuric acid, the corrosive agent of acid rain.

a holdup' constitutes threat: judge

The words "this is a holdup" constitute a threat of violence, a county court judge ruled Monday in finding a 28-year-old man guilty of attempted robbery.

Judge Frederick Melvin said Joseph Charles Edward LeBlanc presented himself Sept. 25 to a teller at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Fort and Government, and told her to give him $1,000.

She asked with what and he replied "this is a holdup." She set off the silent alarm and said she didn't have $1,000 and he asked how about $40 but she replied she couldn't give him

LeBlanc was charged with attempting to steal a sum of money with threats of violence — attempted robbery.

Judge Melvin said the demand for money and the words "this is a holdup" can only be categorized as a threat of violence.

In sentencing LeBlanc, he said the Criminal Code recognizes attempted robbery as one of the most serious offences but this particular incident was not the most serious attempted

He took into account the almost two months LeBlanc has spent in custody and then added he was going to do something which might prove to be an error in retrospect, but which fitted the circumstances, and he suspended sentence and issued a three-year probation order.

Melvin instructed the prosecutor's office that any violation of probation, which includes any offence committed during the three years, must result in LeBlanc being brought back before him for sentence on this matter. If that happened, he said, there would likely be a lengthy jail term.

Also in county court, Judge Melvin sentenced Bruce Howard Wright, 25, to three months in jail and placed him on probation for

Wright pleaded guilty Sept. 14 to defrauding the Greater Victoria Savings Credit Union of $4,500 between March 19 and May 30 and theft of $367.11 from a credit union account May 11. He also pleaded guilty Monday to theft of $1,587.56 from the Bank of Montreal in Smithers between Dec. 15, 1977, and Jan. 30,

Wright was accountant and administration manager at the bank and was a sub-of-fice manager at the credit union's Langford

Crown counsel Peter Birkett said the bank theft resulted from transferring of funds from dormant accounts. The credit union fraud occurred when he approved a $4,500 loan to a fictitious person and the theft was withdrawing and pocketing $367.11 from the account of someone who complained it was not her's. In fact, it belonged to another account, said

Defence counsel Bruce McConnan pro duced four letters attesting to Wright's character and said restitution has been made to the credit union. He asked for consideration of a jail sentence of less than six months so Wright can be eligible for temporary absence passes to continue his employment at a hotel.

Judge Melvin said courts have always looked at an individual who breaches a trust in a serious way and imposed sentences greater than simple theft. Jail had to be imposed this time because there were three occasions when Wright breached a trust but he considered Wright's age, personal background, present employment and no previous

Three years for holdup

Two men were sentenced in county court Monday to three years in the penitentiary for armed robbery and the separate offence of using a firearm while committing an indictable offence.

Ian Matthew Trett, 19, and Steven Frank Graham, 20, got two years for the robbery of View Royal Food Market on Feb. 27, 1978, and the minimum one year for the separate firearm offence. Both also were prohibited from having a firearm for five years.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart convicted them earlier this month after a trial in which it was said that two men, one armed with a rifle, stole $180 to $200 from the store.

Judge Stewart said it was all very well to talk of young offenders but his primary responsibility was to protect proprietors of small stores which are often in isolated positions, frequently open late in the evening and easy targets for marauders such as Trett and Graham carrying a weapon.

Graham, who has spent seven months in custody on the offence, has a criminal record for robbery and po-session of marijuana. Trett has a criminal record for seven breaking and enterings, five of them also in-

Before the judge

pleaded guilty to six charges Monday in provincial court was jailed for six months.

Michael Laforme, no fixed address, admitted failing to show up for a trial, driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08, and dangerous driving, and changed his plea to guilty on charges of assault by trespassing, common assault, and obtaining transportation by fraud.

Judge William Ostler imposed the six-month sentence for the over .08 charge, one month for failing to appear for his trial, 14 days for dangerous driving, and seven days each for the re-maining three charges, all concurrent.

Laforme's troubles started with a common assault charge last Jan. 25 when Crown counsel Don Laughton said Esquimalt police were called at 2:35 a m to a suite at 540 Comerford. A woman who was a neighbor Laforme's told officers Laforme was banging on the door in search of his common-law wife with whom he had a dispute. Laforme hit the woman twice in the mouth and kicked her in the stomach. Laughton said.

The next incident was on May 5 when Laforme was charged with assault by trespassing. Laughton said Victoria police were called at 12:30 a.m. to the Kings Hotel beer parler where two waiters were holding Laforme. Police were told Laforme had been refused service at the pub and was barred. He took exception and began hassling one of the waiters. bringing the second employee to the rescue.

On July 12 Laforme was charged with obtaining transportation by fraud. He had called Victoria Taxi at had called Victoria Taxi at That's no good. I want to 6:45 p.m. from the Douglas Hotel and was taken to 325 Wilson where he refused to pay the $2 fare because he had no money. The driver took Laforme to the Victoria police station where he was

The driving charges arose from an Oct. 24 incident which began at 12:40 a.m.

Police were called to a disturbance at 568 Yates but were advised Laforme had left in a car. He was spotted driving about five minutes later near the Kings Hotel sued. Before Laforme could Defence lawyer Don Linge said all of the offences were alcohol-related but that the common assault resulted after the woman had struck Laforme first.

Ostler said he would recommend Laforme serve his sentence at the Alouette River unit for the teatment of alcoholism. * *

A 66-year-old man who disrupted a church service Sunday morning was given seven days in jail. Henry Ralph Harvey, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk at Christ Church Cathedral. Crown counsel Wayne Smith said Harvey was at the Quadra Street entrance at 10:30 with an open bottle of wine, swearing and shouting at the congregation. 'I have no patience for Christians at any time," Harvey told the judge. "I'm

Oak Bay holds out on EDC takeover

Oak Bay council decided Monday night to stand pat on the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission becoming part of the Capital Regional District.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier, chairman of the regional district's economic development committee, wrote saying while Oak Bay has not agreed to the district.

while Oak Bay has not agreed to the dis-trict taking over the function, Mayor Brian Smith led him to believe if the municipality was the only holdout he would ask council to reconsider.

"I can now advise you that all five western community electoral areas, including the electoral area of Sooke, together with Saanich and Victoria, have gone on record as being in support of this proposal and Esquimalt council has supported it conditional upon Oak Bay being a participant," said Couvelier.

"I believe it most important that a decision be taken at an early date to proceed with this activity. Its extent that proceed with this activity in order that there will be no discontinuance of efforts on behalf of the region's economic development," he said, asking that the matter be raised again at Oak Bay council.

Council voted, without any debate, to let the matter remain on the table. Next council meeting is Dec. 3, the inaugural meeting of the new council.

Oak Bay has opposed the economic development commission, founded and funded by the four Greater Victoria municipalities and the provincial government, becoming part of the regional district. Aldermen prefer that it remain a separate undertaking with increased funding at least pending a provincial review of the future of regional districts.

In other business, council supported a planned new CP Air service to Victoria. The airline asked for council's support for an application it will make soon to the Canadian Transport Commission's air transport committee to add Victoria to its transcontinental licence.

The company plans an eastbound early-morning flight from Victoria to Vancou-ver, Calgary, Winnipeg and Otfawa and an early afternoon flight from Victoria to Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa plus, westbound, an early morning Ottawa-Toronto-Winnipeg-Victoria flight arriving here about mid-day and a late afternoon Oto tawa-Winnipeg-Calgary-Vancouver-Victoria flight arriving here between 9:30 and 10 p.m.

Council endorsed CP Air's application with Mayor Smith saying he has already made a number of unsolicited comments about the lack of service to Victoria by all

Everyone wants the prime market and not bring tired Victorians back from the mainland after 10 p.m.," he said. "The carriers should provide duty service as well as gravy service.

Water user rebates for some

Rebates totalling $10, ern Community residents because they paid too much for their water last spring.

John Heggie, secretary-treasurer of the Greater Victoria water district, said Monday the rebate took the form of about a $5 reduction in the bi-monthly service charge. A similar rebate was paid in the last bill-ing period of 1978. Unexpected revenues during the dry spring and summer made the rebates possible.

Water rates had initially been set at 16.5 cents for 1,000 gallons but the figure was reduced to 13 cents at the board's October meet-

Only users in the western communities pur-chase their water individually from the board. Users elsewhere in the capital region won't get the rebate. Instead, the core and peninsula municipalities are using their share of the surplus money for their respective water systems.

Sidney leery of offer

Sidney council Monday asked the federal govern-ment for more information on the costs of running Pat Bay airport.

The move follows a government report suggesting local communities take over the operation of airports, in cluding repairs and capital

The two-volume Transport Canada aiport management study says self-supporting airports would save the government money. The government would retain control of air safety.

Mayor Norma Sealey said if the government can't run an aiport economically, she doesn't know how it can expect local communities to.

"The ways you run an eco-nomically viable operation are limited to a number of ways," she said. "For example, landing fees and rental of facilities such as concession operations."

She noted that under the proposals if the study airport employees would no longer be civil servants but local employees subject to local labor relations.

The time element is a big factor in the outcome of many deals. A declarer sometimes achieves a posi-tion where he has all the tricks he needs to make the contract, and yet goes down because the defenders beat him to the punch and cash their own tricks first. A cautious declarer is always busy looking for ways and means of turning the time factor to his own advantage. This deal illustrates how the deed is done. Let's assume West leads a diamond, won by East with the ace. If East now foolishly cashes his other two aces, South easily makes the con-tract. Instead, East should try to build up a defensive spade trick before dummy's clubs get established. Accordingly, he shifts to the jack of spades.

Declarer wins with the king, returns the ten of clubs, which East ducks, and leads another club, taken by the ace. East now plays another spade, forcing out dummy's ace.

If the defenders were on lead at this point, they could cash a spade trick and sink the contract. However, they are one tempo behind and soon find themselves helpless. South has the situation fully under control, having the time advantage, and cannot be stopped from making the contract.

When declarer leads dummy's king of clubs, East can do no better than ruff with the six, which South overruffs. Declarer then trumps a diamond in dummy and leads the queen of clubs: Now East is kaput, whether he ruffs or not. In either case, South discards a spade and finishes with ten tricks.
It is both interesting and instructive to note that the defense can win the race against time if West happens to lead a spade originally instead of a diamond. In that case, the defenders would finish one jump ahead of

Sweater returns without pinup girl

By BERNADINE MORRIS New York Times

The sweater girl is returning. Not since the heyday of Lana Turner and Ava Gardner in the 1940's has there been such an emphasis on pullovers, cardigans and, for disguise the body beneath it too the 1980's, camisoles and strapless much. tube tops.

The emphasis is, of course, form. In that earlier era when the sweater girl was also a pinup. uplift bras and even padded ones made for considerable exaggeration of female curves.

Neither kind of underpinning is de rigueur today. Sweaters are part of the natural look and are not recommended for the femme fa-tale. While they are not oversized, they are not designed to fit like a second skin either. Thick yarns and bulky stitches cut down on the revealing qualities. Still, any garment that is knitted doesn't

When the pinup girl passed into history in the 1950's, sweaters went changing. Nothing in fashion ever comes back in exactly the same into a decline too, being relegated to grandmothers and worn by to grandmothers and worn by younger people mainly to keep

> As the swinging 60's gave way to the more sedate 70's, Halston was as much responsible as anyone for life. He brought back-cashmere, that favorite of college women and suburbanites in the pinup era, in classic styles and revived the wearing of a pullover and tying a matching cardigan around the neck or waist in case it got cold.

Along with Halston, the twin sweater set traveled in high fashion circles in the early part of this

Yves Saint Laurent bestowed equal status on sweaters in Europe and even added fur collars and cuffs to some of his styles

Other designers, such as Ralph auren, have elevated sweaters to an equal position with, say blouses in recent seasons Lauren's specialty was the thick shaker knit, to which he would add a fragile lace collar - an idea that was picked up by fashion followers

The handknit sweater also began attracting fashion-conscious people, perhaps as an antidote to all the ersatz that was around. Top designers such as Bill Blass introduced handknitted styles in their dress collections.

But what gave sweaters their biggest boost this fall was the energy crisis. Anticipating fuel oil shortages, women began investing in sweaters as avidly as they collected cords of wood for their fireplaces.

The sweater boom is expected to continue into spring, with designers everywhere hopping on the bandwagon With warmth not so great a factor, looks take over. Designers have expanded the kinds of yarn used for sweaters to include cotton, linen and silk. They have interpreted the two-and three-color themes so important in the rest of the fashion world into knitted styles. They have incorporated multicolor stripes and extraneous details such 'as appliqued bows into their designs.

The twin sweater set is still here, only now it takes the form of a camisole that bares the shoulders and a cardigan. Textured effects are achieved with novelty stitches.

The sweater is paired, in the new collections, with swinging skirts and narrow ones, as well as long pants, Bermudas and even short shorts. It is part of formal costumes for evening and clothes towear to work as well as play

Dear Doctor: Will you please send me the name of an excellent doctor who knows all about varicose veins? Ms. B.B.

Dear Ms. B .:

Frequently, readers ask me for the name of an "excellent doctor" when they by-pass their own doctor, who should be the clearing house for proper referrals.

In your own community, there are two major hospitals staffed by doctors of local and national distinction. There is no doubt that your own doctor can refer you to a surgeon or a specialist in the field of vascular problems. These doctors would be completely conversant with all of the new techniques that are now being used for the treatment of varicose veins. **

I am always intrigued by "the philosophy of elsewhere" that induces people to travel great distances for medical attention, the quality of which is available in their own home town.

I have heard of people in Rochester who take their medical problems to the Leahy Clinic in Boston. Bostonians are known to seek help in Baltimore.

This cycle epitomizes "the philosophy of elsewhere." A great many people will impose on themselves a tremendous handen in time and expense to reach out for a far-distant doctor when actually their local spe-cialists are completely equipped to handle their medical problems

. It is true, occasionally, that an "ultra" specialist in a far-removed area can wisely be called on for the solution of a medical problem that is extremely complex or rare. These are doctors who are nationally identified with very specific aspects of their own specialty. In such cases, your own doctor would know of their work and would send you to them if your medical problem warranted it.

Of the 56 perfumes Donelian has produced, A'noush is the first to be marketed. He decided to try selling it because "it is the most intimate one I have created."

youth clinic

Dear Mr. Vichert: I'm 17, and the problem is my father. He is old and miserable, and though he sometimes says he doesn't, he seems to hate me.

He tells me to shut up every time I say anything. I'm not supposed to have any views or opinons or say anything around him. I don't often say anything bad—if I do, it's usually under the say anything bad—if I do, it's usually under the say have the say anything bad. my breath and it's an attempt to explain, to show him how he treats me.

He thinks I'can't do anything and calls me names. I just ean't satisfy him, no matter what I

Answer: I wonder if this problem you are having with your father is a new one?

You have been living with him for 17 years and I would hope your father has not always treated you

He may feel that you think of him as "old and miserable" and is hurt and expresses his anger by not wanting your opinion. Whatever the cause, the path toward a solution is to try and talk with your father and let him know you would like to change the quality of your relationship.

Dear Dr. Levine: I'm a 14-year-old girl. Ever since last summer after my boyfriend and I broke up, F've been in a kind of depression state. I have had other boyfriends since then but I can't stop thinking about him. We got along great, but after he went away for two weeks, he came home and wouldn't even talk or look at me and I haven't had the nerve to try to talk to him. He is 16. Please

Answer: I don't want to minimize your problem by telling you that it is very common for boys and girls in their early and mid-teens to quickly develop passionate crushes, and just as suddenly to lose their romantic enthusiasm for someone they loved only a few days earlier. Sometimes the change is so sudden and strong that it moves from love to dislike very quickly. It sounds like you are the "victim" of one of these fickle phenomena right & now, but (I am not recommending this, believe me) you might be the one to lose your love for somebody else next time.

You might try talking to him, but you might end up both being embarrassed. It sounds like he's lost interest, and your love won't be rekindled. On the other hand, you may end up being just friends, if you can be satisfied with that.

You are raising another issue, however. Many of us dwell for too long on unfortunate experiences in our lives. If we let them get the better of us, these memories and the feelings they are memories and the feelings they arouse, bring us "down", and we can't seem to shake these blues. The most difficult pains to get over, are losses of personal relationships. There are many reasons too complex to get into now, for people to get depressed after a "loss". The solution for you is to recognize that it's over.

Dear Dr. Powell: I don't know if this is a serious problem now, but what will happen in the future?
I'm a 14-year-old female in good physical condition. I exercise daily and jog a couple of times a week. I'm 5 feet and about 97 pounds.
Ever since Grade 5 or 6. I've been gaining about 10 pounds a year. In Grade 5 I weighed 50 pounds, Grade 6, 60 pounds.

How much more weight will I gain? Will I continue to gain 10 pounds every year for the rest of my life? Should I go on a diet now?

Answer: During your infancy and childhood you have been growing in height and this gain in weight has been a normal part of your development. If you had not gained weight as you grew taller you would have become pretty thin over the past few years.

Children grow and the increase in their height and weight is used as a measure of their progress in development. After the age of 2 growth slows down for the next eight or 10 years until the child reaches the stage we call prepuberty.

There is a spurt in height—maybe five inches in a year and a corresponding gain in weight. Then as puberty is reached, growth slows down again and is completed by the mid-teen years for girls and late-teen years for boys.

So at 14, you are probably past the greatest period of growth and you will stop gaining weight as rapidly as in-the past. However some people do continue to gain weight and they must begin to develop a lifestyle which includes a pattern of eating and program of exercise which will maintain weight close to the ideal weight for height and body

Rather than think about going on'a diet develop an eating pattern which you can stay with the rest of your life. Avoid junk food which is food with calories and very little else.

Klein leads show with spring offering

By JOANNE WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — During the last days of springsummer fashion collections for 1980, Halston, Levino Kasper showed to packed

Halston's sportswear didn't quite measure up to his previous collection. His skirts and day dresses have rounded silhouettes, high curved waists, and diagonal spiral shaped skirts. They are all simpler versions of what he showed in his readyto-wear collection two weeks

There are saleable suits, jackets and pants and one and two-piece dresses. A kelly green pantsuit in glazed poplin with a hip-length jacket and drawstring pants has more of a real sportswear look.

Young Levino Verna's spring and summer message is upbeat all the way. It's witty, wearable and original. The white organdy, cotton lawn and georgette group is fresh as a daisy and full of Deftly handled are pleated ruching on collars and cuffs of the organdies, pin tucking on the blouse of a two-piece white georgette with a mattching three-tiered skirt, and a halter top white lawn dress with ruched neckline. Verna's organdy blouses are the prettiest in town.

An English floral garden print in blue, white, yellow, turquoise and green cotton is often paired with the same colors in striped cotton. Outstanding are a floral pina-fore dress and striped bermuda shorts with matching camisole top worn under a shirt and skirt in the same floral and striped cotton pants teamed with an organdy shirt.

On the Chinese calendar, the year 1980 is the Year of the Monkey. Verna's signature monkey print of his own design is the most amusing and original of the hundreds of prints seen at the shows to pale gray or blush georgette for a long tank top dress under a one-shouldered toga, a short one-shouldered din-Kasper's long, repetitive ner dress, and a flowing toga-like float over black silk pants. One multicolored monkey is very smart em-broidered on the back of a white, short-sleeved pique tunic worn over pants.

Black and blue and white all over is the only polka dot in cotton for crisp dresses under matching jackets. Verna makes a strong statement with his tricolored silk dresses and pants in tanger-ine, white and turquoise, particularly the short wrap dress and the asymmetrically cut top over solid color silk pants.

Among the outstanding evening looks are a black silk jacquard jump suit whose matching tuxedo jacket is lined in emerald green with the lapels and cuffs in white silk, a long T shirt in lavendar silk has the hips wrapped with a matching triangular scarf lined in emerald, and a couple of charming short organdy dance dresses.

There are only a few styles in each group. Verna has avoided the pitfalls of repetition that obsesses many delented and has remembered

Kasper's long, repetitive collection for Joan Leslie is full of adaptations of every recent trend, shape, style, cut and color for morning, afternoon, into evening. There is little to report that is new. His best efforts are the two-tone tricolored short sleeved day dresses. These come in light and dark gray and dark red with diagonal, asymmetric patterns

The same colorings are translated into a good sweat-er dress. Other sweater dresses patterned in stripes, angles, and other geometric designs were by far Kasper's

Calvin Klein's throwaway casual chic was much in evi-dence and his confidence in his particular style, judging by the enthusiastic audience reaction, is justified.

He is designer who ignores the obvious and does what he believes in. The soft suedes and chamouses that are one of his signatures are shown in offbeat shades of henna, fawn and stone for small wrap jackets and pants along with wrap dresses.

tures beautifully. His skirts are short, just above or grazing the knee. The newest are in silk with contrasting color borders at the hemk. Many Klein also has some new and goodlooking cotton knit crew sweaters and cardigans. The latter are wrapped and belted with revere type lapels. He pairs a floral silk blouse with a striped silk skirt for a winning combo.

His new blouses are stunning in silk and organza. They are double breasted with two rows of little buttons and standup collars. Other blouses have one large triangular lapel in a con-trasting color block.

He is very big on silk wrap dresses over pants in both solids and stripes. Dark red and gold, red and teak, or teak and pine are the deep colors. Striped wrap dresse usually go over solid silk pants or vice versa.

His evening group is small but it makes a big impress-ion, particularly copper beaded silk organza wrap coats over organza pants, a bugle beaded organza raja coat shown with organza pants, and a pair of bugle beaded pants.

A group of silk organzas as light as a feather in apricot, rose, ebony and henna have full, layered, and pouf skirts for dresses or evening suits. This collection is short, sweet and beautiful

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — When Leslie Yeo was appointed in-terim artistic director last year for the 1979 Shaw Festival, he promised that he would have a turnaround from the previous season's loss of $210,000. The festival, which ended the season recently, had collected $26,877 more in box office receipts than budgeted. "When the final count is made in De-cember, the festival will end up with the largest one-year surplus in its 18-year history," Yeo said.

How to hold Canada together a baffling topic to most

FP News Service
(last of three parts)
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — No question about the future of the country these days seems to baffle Canadians more than a query about more than a query about what they would do to keep the nation united.

If the question isn't met with a blank stae, the answer is usually a repetition of a tired old formula such as more student exchanges or visits to Quebec "to really meet the people.'

Few fresh ideas

Of the nearly 70 bankers, publishers, premiers, pro-fessors and other community leaders interviewed in a five-week cross-Canada survey, only a handful offered

The attitude of many is that there's no point wracking their brains looking for solutions because Quebec will never gain independence in the first place.

"People simply don't worry about it," says Edmonton publisher Mel Hurtig, "because they believe Liberal Leader Claude Ryan is going to whip Rene Leves que, or they look at the public opinion polls which show Quebecers don't want to separate."

Charlottetown bank manager Gordon Miller believes residents of Prince Edward Island are too concerned with local issues to worry about keeping Quebec in.

"Most people don't want to grapple with a problem like that until it's on their door-step, so they wouldn't be concerned until Levesque obtained a "Yes" vote in his referndum on indepen-As a solution of "last re-cial powers.

The number of people in this country who believe Levesque isn't serious about sovereignty-association seems staggering and probably accounts for the nation's indifference at the approach of next spring's ndependence referendum.

But in St. John's, outspo-ken businessman Graham Mercer says he isn't fooled by Levesque's image as "a likeable rogue.

"He's a great salesman and he's slowly selling Quebecers on sovereighty-association. It scares the hell out of me that Ottawa isn't doing a damn thing about it. And unless Joe Clark — that nice little boy-type of a man — gets off his butt and starts selling the advantages of remaining in Canada to Quebecers, Levesque is going to break up this country."

In the same city, Memo-But deep down, Miller rial University professor brinks Levesque is merely Steve Wolinetz offers one of

Equally noteworthy is the idea beginning to be heard from a number of western thinkers to the effect that national unity will be attained if all Canadians are allowed to share in energy.

Prof. George Hulmes of the political science faculty of the University of Alberta, for instance, believes the federal government should obtain a greater share of his province's gas and oil reve-

So the oil price should not be raised to world levels and the price per crude barrel should relate to the cost of production and

One of the more popular theories on "saving" Canada currently appears to be con-stitutional revision and, indeed, most Canadians seems ready to accept some new form of constitution. Exponents of the status quo seem.

"I don't have any solution as to how one saves Can-ada," says Ontario Premier William Davis, "but I think Canada is going to be sus-

"I think there probably will be some alteration of our constitution and as a province we are committed to support that. But it's diffi-cult at this moment because the government of Quebec isn't prepared — and I'm not being critical of this — but they're not prepared to discuss constitutional change. But I think that's where the ultimate answer lies."

In Saskatchewan, Howard Leeson, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs, outlines his views on constitutional revision:

Time for talking

"I think that we have to, in a very flexible way, have all the regions of Canada sit down. And that includes Levesque, even if he wins his referendum. And say to him, come to the table. Don't prejudge the whole thing. We've had a history here. Sure, part of it has been bad and I'm sure you feel some grievances just as we feel some

'But let's not toss it away so lightly. I know you're a nationalist and I know you're caught up in the feeling of nationalism and the upsurge of emotion and the trappings that come with the national-

what there is and don't bring us just your option. Maybe there's a federal structure that can accommodate everything you want.

Conrad Black, Chairman of Argus Corp. says he has never met a French-Canadian nationalist who could conceive of the idea that there is such a thing as an English-speaking Canada or who thought about Canada way he thought about

'They all think that Canada is really an anglo-American invention. That it's just a facade; a con job. "As far as I can tell, no one in the federal government ever quite comprehended the extent to which the federal government and Can ada as a political entity are regarded contemptuously by nationalist Quebecers.

"So, the first thing to de would be to assert in a posi tive and constructive way the relevance and capacity the federal government.

Hall heritage hassle

Saanich council is having trouble figuring out what to do with two heritage properties on West Saanich Road.

The old Saanich municipal hall was recently designated a heritage building, much to the chagrin of owner Jim Ben-Oliel who was all set to tear it down.

Across the street lies Saanich's latest acquisition, the 7.7-acre Maltwood property recently purchased for $375,000 from the University of Victoria.
Since he can't demolish it, Ben-Oliel wants to turn the old hall into a 200-seat neighborhood pub.

PCs want to cut

OTTAWA (CP) - The government announced Monday it wants to sell off most of the majority interest it holds in the Canada Development Corp., the Crown investment agency created by the previous Liberal government to gain or keep contol of companies operating in Canada.

Treasury Board Secretary Sinclair Stevens said in a news conference the government is considering whether it can reduce its holdings in the corporation to as low as 10 per cent from the present 66 per cent.

The minister said the cor poration could be a vehicle for purchasing some of the Crown corporations which the government wants to sell off to the private sector.

He said the corporation already controls about 130 of the 400 Crown-owned businesses. It would be "a giant step ahead in getting Crown corporations owned by the government to the private

He said the government has not yet decided how it can dispose of its share. But he said it hopes that it can solve that problem in time to allow it to reduce its holdings six months.

The minister was making the third so-called privatization announcement of the Conservative government ince it was elected May 22 In September it named four companies and four subsidiaries it is considering put ting into private hands. And in October it released a committee report on how to dispose much of Petro-Canada, the Crown oil agency.

Job prospects bleak for Victoria children

visit their children in Alberta because there won't be many jobs for young people here in the 1990s, capital region board senior planner Brian Wheatley said today.

The population is growing faster than the number of jobs and thousands of young people will have to leave Victoria to find work.

In a speech to a tourism seminar at the Princess Mary restaurant, he said the job shortage will reach 20,000 by 'To put it as simply as possible, your children will have to leave Victoria to find gainful employment when they enter the labor force. "Even in a region which desires a low growth rate it seems reasonable that we could adopt as an economic objective that of creating sufficient jobs in Victoria so that the children of the residents have a reasonable choice whether or not they make the long, cold trek to Calgary or Edmonton.

Residents might not be concerned about providing jobs for newcomers but they should do whatever they can to assure their own children can earn a living here.

Otherwise they will have to resign themselves to the fact they will have to go to Alberta whenever they want to visit their children.

There is no sign that government jobs will increase quickly enough to help resolve the problem, he said. The main hope for young people is for a massive development of the tourist industry on a year-round basis. Tourism is simply the biggest game in town. By any measure it is the single largest economic influence in this region and has the greatest influence and potential for new job creation."

While there are hazards in excessive dependence on tourism, it also provides the greatest potential for employment growth.
Wheatley was addressing a day-long seminar sponsored jointly by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the Visitors Information

Spying 'appalling mistake' stripped of his knighthood as a re-

LONDON - Anthony Blunt, the queen's art adviser unmasked as a former Russian spy, said today he realized 30 years ago he made "an appalling mistake" and refused a Soviet order to defect to Moscow 'because I'd rather spend one month in danger in England than 10 years in Russia.'

In his first statement on the scan-dal since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher revealed his past last Thursday, Blunt said his role as a Soviet spy was the result of choosing political conscience" over loyalty to his country.

In a press statement, Blunt said diplomat Guy Burgess persuaded him "that I could best serve the cause of anti-fascism by joining him in his work for the Russians. The disgraced art historian, ult of the spy scandal, did not admit that he was a traitor, nor did he

"This was a case of political conscience against loyalty to country," he said. "I chose conscience." Blunt said: "When later I realized

the true facts about Russia, I was prevented from taking any action by personal loyalty: I could not denounce my friends." Mrs. Thatcher had said he served as a talent spotter for the Soviet Union at Cambridge University in the 1930s, passed information to the Russians when he was a military intelligence officer during the war, and helped Burgess and fellow spy diplomat Donald Maclean to defect to the Soviet Union in 1951.

In the interview with Independent Television News, Blunt, wearing a gray sports coat, blue sweater and silver-rimmed glasses, said "I now realize I was totally wrong."

Asked how it felt to be called a traitor, Blunt shrugged and said, "I can't deny it."

But he denied any lives were endangered during the war as a result of his spying, saying most of the information he passed on involved German intelligence services. He said he had "no information" about British agents or military de-He said his contacts with the Rus-
